Berlin-Tegel "Otto Lilienthal" Airport (IATA: TXL) served 21,403,527 passengers in 2008 together with Schönefeld Airport. Its hexagonal terminal building around an open square makes for walking distances as short as 30 m (98 ft) from the aircraft to the terminal exit. Tegel is scheduled to close in 2012, 6 months after the completion of the new Berlin-Brandenburg International Airport that is slated to handle all commercial flights to and from Berlin.
